

COMMUNITY SERVICE: WAY TO BE DESIGNS, LLC

Thanks to Way To Be, employees at the Stepping Stones Growth Center are now working in style. Recognizing that first impressions are important, Way To Be donated shirts, pants, and reflective vests adorned with the Stepping Stones logo. Prior to the donation, employees were working in their street clothes. Robert Robichaud, Director of Employment Access & Evaluation for Stepping Stones, says the donation helps their crew to excel in their current positions and enhances the chances of other Stepping Stones' job applicants with disabilities to be seen in a positive light. Whether at Wal-Mart, Safeway, Home Depot or the other twenty businesses that Stepping Stones works with, first impressions mean a lot. Their mission is to enhance the independence, self-sufficiency, and quality of life for people with developmental disabilities who might otherwise be alienated from mainstream society.

The donation exemplifies Way To Be's commitment to being "good for nothing" ... expecting nothing in return. They also offer Way To Be employees one paid day each year for volunteering at a charity of their choice and a donation matching program, among many other charitable contributions made each year. Be generous and grateful... the only Way To Be!

Stepping Stones Growth Center's "Downtown San Leandro Beautification Crew" (Supervisor Darien with Jamaal, Angelo, Ysidro, Joseph & Scott)

If you have any questions about Way To Be Designs, LLC or its community service efforts, please contact Andrea Ferris, Director, Customer Solutions & Strategy, at andrea@waytobe.com.